

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Provided are a medicine case, a medicine case with a blood pressure measuring function, and a medication management system capable of storing blood pressure measurement together with medication record automatically, displaying simultaneously, and entering and issuing, and also supplying clinically useful information. In the medicine case, since the medicine to be taken is indicated at every timing specified by the attending physician, and the medicine can be taken without error or fail, and also the medication information and blood pressure measuring results are stored and displayed simultaneously, and can be observed simultaneously at a glance at a medical institute, and changes in blood pressure information and medication effects are determined easily, so that clinically useful information can be obtained.